學習筆記 American Holidays Part 1

我的讀後心得

1. The PowerPoint and recordings give a good and easy look over the many holidays celebrated in America. There are many other ones too, but the holidays mentioned here are the most commonly or just the most celebrated.
2. I like the cute pictures in the PowerPoint quiz. There are many symbols that are related to the holidays talked about in this lesson. If anyone wants more information, they can ask me. I will find more images related to the holidays to share with you.
3. The most recent American Holiday coming up (快要到的節日) is actually Thanksgiving Day (感恩節) and after that it is Christmas (聖誕節)! Normally, American eat huge turkeys (超級大的火雞), mashed potatoes (馬鈴薯泥), and lots of other foods (太多種了，有興趣的人可以問我)。 There is a tradition at Thanksgiving where two people pull the wishbone (叉骨) and whoever gets the bigger side will have their wish come true(誰把叉骨折斷最長的哪一邊，他許的願就會成真). I have had this happen to me, and my wish did come true. The wish was not very good. I just wished to eat more chicken legs (my mom cooks some mean chicken legs 我媽媽很會做雞翅膀所以我小時候很愛吃).
4. Ok, now for my experiences. Any holiday in the U.S. is celebrated with gusto (很熱烈的過). For instance, everyone decorates their house for Halloween (萬聖節) and Christmas. Some people even like to compete to see who has better decorations. They also love to dress up on many of the holidays, too. 每一家都會布置他們的家，也喜歡在各節打扮自己。
